UM TO SIGN EXCHANGE AGREEMENT WITH UNIVERSITY IN SHANGHAI

MISSOULA --

The University of Montana will sign an exchange agreement with China's Shanghai International Studies University at 2 p.m. Wednesday, April 8, in UM's Maureen and Mike Mansfield Center.

The exchange program, which will be for both faculty and students, may begin as early as fall 1988, says Mansfield Center Director Paul Lauren.

Representing Shanghai International Studies University at the signing will be President Hu Menghao; Ji Ronggen, director of the foreign affairs division; and Wang Changrong, dean of academic studies. They'll spend April 6-8 visiting the Mansfield Center, getting acquainted with UM President James Koch, concluding the exchange negotiations, and touring the campus and Missoula area.

Raymond Wylie, Mansfield professor of modern Asian affairs, taught English at Shanghai International Studies University in the late 1960s and is enthusiastic about the exchange program.

"I have very positive memories of my time at that university and welcome the opportunity for UM faculty and students to establish academic links with Shanghai," he says.

The exchange program with the Shanghai university is the
